

Describe

User Journey Map

User flow, also known as user journey or user workflow, refers to the series of steps or actions that a user takes within a digital product or application to accomplish a specific task or goal. It outlines the path that the user follows, including the interactions, decisions, and transitions between different screens or pages.

Personalised